

Volume 1 – Day 3: Love Produces Grace

The God of the Bible is the epitome of relationship in every possible relational experience. That is, God is the best Father, Mother, Sister, Brother, Friend and Mate anyone could ever have. Jesus proclaimed in His preaching, that even though we look out for the best interests of our children, God is far better at parenting than we could ever be. He actually knows the motives of every human expression. And like the “best Dad ever”, His love never falters toward His children. His desire for them is that they become the best adults possible and reach their greatest potential. And His grace (underserved favor) toward His children never puts a limit on second chances. He will patiently pour everything He can into them.

The best definition of grace includes the fact that Grace is a by-product of love that will never cease to flow toward the object of that love, that is favor for the undeserving. When love is present, it will always offer to help one up who is down. So, like a mother who sits in the courtroom with her erring child, even if her child deserved to be punished, pleads for the shortest possible sentence. So, God as both Father and Mother has every intention of both helping the children become their best possible selves and of minimizing the emotional pain they must endure in life. The introduction of God Himself into the physical realm of man in the person of His Only Begotten Son, is the strongest evidence of God’s desire for an up close and personal relationship with mankind. The height or pinnacle of human experience can only be achieved in a personal relationship with God through His Only Begotten Son, Jesus Christ.
